MEMORIAL DAY ON MONDAY MAY 31ST

Annual Occasion Falls this Year on Sunday so that Exercises here will be Held the Day Following. Speaker is not yet Named.

Corporal Skelly Post 9, Grand Army of the Republic, will observe Memorial Day this year on Monday, May 31. The custom of moving the day forward when the usual time falls on Sunday has become an unwritten law with the Grand Army, and, in spite of the fact that no definite orders looking to that end have been received from the department commander, the local post is making its arrangements for observing the day on the thirty first.

The committee having in charge the securing of a speaker for the day have not yet announced the orator. They have been in communication with a man of national prominence for some time and expect to have a speaker fully as well known as any who have spoken from the rostrum in recent years. They have been hoping for some time past to make an early announcement but a definite acceptance has not yet been received.

The day here promises to be fully as large as any of the past few years. M. T. McNeil, traveling passenger agent of the Western Maryland railroad, was in town on Friday and stated that his road would run the usual number of excursions to Gettysburg on that day. Trains will come from Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania over this road, and the Reading will bring its usual number of specials.

Independence Day this year also falls on Sunday and "July fourth" will likely be observed on the fifth. Bankers note that Good Friday occurs on April second. In view of the large amount of business at that time of the year some banks in nearby towns considered the advisability of keeping open on that date, but there was raised the question of whether or not business done on a legal holiday would hold, and the idea was given up.

The positions are open to all college students but preference is given to the coming Seniors for the proctors' positions and the custodian of the reading room.

In making the appointments, the faculty of the institution will take into consideration chiefly the special qualifications of the applicant, his past scholarship and deportment, and his financial needs. GERMANS FALL BACK TO MEMEL

Russians invade Kaiser's Territory in the North.

DEFENDERS LOSE HEAVILY

Desperate Fighting Is in Progress on the Banks of the Narew River. Bombarding Przemyśl.

Petrograd, March 20. — "Russian troops driving into German territory, before Memel, have won a complete success," says a brief official statement issued at the war office.

The war office states that the German troops on the East Prussian frontier, east of Memel, were taken by surprise and lost heavily under the Russian attack, finally retreating to the fortifications of Memel.

The following official statement was issued earlier by the war office: "In the region of the Przemyśl fortress our artillery continues to throw more than a thousand heavy projectiles daily, whereby our troops lost an average of only ten men daily."

"On the right bank of the Narew river engagements are in progress for the possession of the villages and dry ground. The fighting is characterized by fierceness, despite the great number of trenches and wire entanglements, the two sides alternately attacking and counter attacking. Small villages often change hands as many as eight times in the course of a day."

"Quick firing and machine gun plan an important part in this street fighting, sweeping the approaches to the houses in which they are mounted by a murderous fire from the windows. During the night bayonet engagements are the rule, and these are of an extremely desperate character."

"Commanding officers report that our troops are fighting with magnificent courage, fired by the example of their officers, whose dash and daring are beyond all praise."

"The Narew river has overflowed and flooded the German trenches near Dolezki, on the left bank of the Pillica river. The Germans maintain a violent artillery fire. Their losses in this region during the demonstration period which began March 5 are estimated to amount to 25,000 men at least."

COPE GUILTY OF MURDER

Slayer of Niece Convicted in Second Degree at Doylestown.

Doylestown, Pa., March 20.—John A. Cope, who killed his niece, Florence B. Cope, on Sept. 28, 1914, was found guilty of murder in the second degree after the jury had been out four hours.

The crime for which Cope was tried was committed at his brother Clinton's home. Cope had been drinking heavily, and during the course of his spree had quarreled with Mrs. Clinton Cope, mother of Florence. He left the house, returning several hours later armed with a shotgun.

Mrs. Cope was upstairs. John yelled for her, but the daughter answered. Cope, in his defense, declared that he had pointed the weapon at his niece in an endeavor to frighten her.

She sprang for the gun, and the two wrestled for its possession. In the scuffle the weapon was discharged, the girl being shot in the stomach. She died almost instantly.

It shows a British sniper, well concealed, ready to pick off any German observers who happen to leave the trenches.

THE CROWN PRINCE MURDERED, IS REPORT

Said to Have Been Killed by Member of His Suite.

New York, March 20.—In a letter communicated to the Sun the report that the German crown prince is dead, which has been rumored from time to time, is repeated, this time by a resident of Copenhagen, who says it is common knowledge in Denmark.

"The German crown prince has been murdered," says this correspondent. "He was killed by one of the members of his own suite. Since then the Kaiser has doubled his bodyguard with picked men, doubtless for fear he may have a similar fate."

It was recently reported that the Kaiser's eldest son had incurred his father's anger and had been called back from the front. It has also been said that the crown prince was seriously ill.

(A dispatch from Copenhagen to London on Thursday declared that the crown prince had been consulted by his father, the Kaiser, before the latter departed for Lille to hold a council of war.)

3 BATTLESHIPS SUNK BY MINES

British Lose Two and French One in Attack on Dardanelles.

TWO OTHERS DISABLED

Entire Crew of 621 of the Bouvet Is Reported Lost—Other Vessels Sent to Scene and Fight Goes On.

London, March 20.—The British battleships irresistible and Ocean and the French battleship Bouvet have been sunk in the Dardanelles, the admiralty announces.

The announcement states that the Bouvet was blown up by a mine in the Dardanelles and sunk and that virtually her entire crew were lost.

The Ocean struck a drifting mine, and the admiralty believes that the irresistible probably met with a like disaster.

The admiralty statement says that the British losses among the personnel of the ships were not heavy, considering the scale of the operations.

The British battle cruiser Indefatigable had her forward control hit by a heavy shell and will need repairs.

The irresistible left the battle line listing heavily, according to the report.

Vice Admiral Sackville Hamilton Carden, who is ill, has been succeeded in command at the Dardanelles by Rear Admiral John M. de Robeck.

The admiralty statement adds that the battleships Queen and Implacable have been dispatched from England to replace the lost British ships and that the operations against the Dardanelles are continuing.

The French ministry of marine gave out a communication concerning the fight, which said:

"The French battleship Bouvet has been sunk during the operations in the Dardanelles by the explosion of a mine."

"The battleship Gaulois was damaged and put out of action."

"Two British battleships were sunk by mines."

"Part of the crew of the battleship Bouvet is believed to have been saved."

The allied fleet entered the Straits of the Dardanelles at eight o'clock on Friday morning, says an Athens dispatch to the Havas agency, based on information received from Henedos.

The warships stationed at the entrance to the straits bombarded Dardanus and Kild Bahr. The line extended from Kum Kale, on the Asiatic side at the entrance to the straits, to Kalantina. The line advanced as far as Cavotonia, where a powder arsenal, situated below the town of Dardanelles, was blown up.

Fort Tchemenli, Kild Bahr and Yildiz replied with a heavy fire, the shells falling on all sides of the warships and some even on the ships themselves.

One ship entered close to Dardanelles, but was forced to retreat before a violent cannonading. One French ship, the name of which is not yet known, suffered severe injuries.

A shell exploded on the British battle cruiser Indefatigable, wounding several men, who were immediately transported to the hospital ship.

The town of Dardanelles is now in flames.

At six o'clock in the evening the action had concluded, but was partly resumed during the night. A majority of the forts suffered severely.

While the British and French battleships were attacking the fortresses in the Dardanelles another squadron of the allied fleets commenced operations against three fortresses in Saros bay. After a fierce artillery duel the hostile ships withdrew.

Turks Bombard Russian Port.

Constantinople, March 20.—An official statement issued from Turkish headquarters says:

"Our fleet bombarded the shipyards and maneuvering place of torpedo boats west of Theodosia (on the Black sea) and set fire to the buildings."

"An allied enemy fleet heavily shelled the forts of the Dardanelles, which replied effectively, sinking the French battleship Bouvet."

Rob U. S. Mail in Italy.

Naples, March 20.—It was learned that thieves had broken into a mail car in which 225 bags of mail from the United States to points in Germany, Austria and Turkey were being transported. They evidently made a good haul, for several hundred registered letters, almost all written in Greek or Bohemian, were found open. A number of American bank notes were discovered scattered on the floor of the car.

Jefferson County Cattle Under Ban.

Washington, Pa., March 20.—Oswego county, N. Y., and Jefferson county, Pa., are to be added to the closed area under the foot and mouth disease quarantine by order of Secretary of Agriculture Houston. The order is effective March 22.

HOLD HORN FOR U. S.

Commission Puts Bridge Dynamite Under $10,000 Bond.

Bangor, Me., March 20.—The United States commissioner ordered Walter Horn, the German reservist, held in $10,000 bonds for his appearance in the federal district court of Massachusetts to answer to indictments returned at Boston, charging him with the illegal transportation of dynamite in connection with his attempt to wreck the international bridge at Vaneboro.

The commissioner remanded Horn to jail at Portland, pending an order for Horn's removal to Boston, denying the motion of Horn's counsel that the German be discharged.

Joseph F. O'Connell argued for Horn that the transportation of dynamite was only an incident in Horn's expedition and he was responsible only to Germany. The attorney declared that Horn's status was similar to that of the captain of the Prinz Eitel Friedrich, who sank an American ship, but who had not been arrested. He asked that his client be allowed to answer to the state of Maine as to whether his offense was extraditable.

ITALY PREPARING TO DENOUNCE ALLIANCE

Plan to Force Concessions From Austria.

Rome, March 20.—Italy is preparing to denounce the Triple Alliance treaty linking it with Austria and Germany, according to reports from various sources.

Baron Sonnino, minister of foreign affairs, it is reported, is making ready to take this drastic step to force Austria to cede territory to Italy or face Italy's participation in the war on the side of the allies.

In official circles it was admitted that a formal announcement that Italy no longer regards the Triple Alliance treaty as serving her best interests is one of the possibilities in the present situation. Officials privately admitted that the situation has grown more grave in the last twenty-four hours.

Austria Massing Troops on Border.

Venice, March 20.—Austria is continuing her work of fortifying all along the Italian frontier with increased activity. Large numbers of troops and artillery have recently arrived at Riva and Gorizia, and the frontier garrisons have been considerably reinforced.

SOLDIER HELD FOR SHOOTING

Blind Man Hit by Bullet Meant For Deserter Near Death.

New York, March 20.—Sergeant Henry Wetting, of the Sixty-sixth Coast Artillery, U. S. A., who fired four bullets after a deserter he was pursuing at Broadway and Thirty-eighth street, was paroled until next Wednesday in the custody of Captain Charles Barry, U. S. A., when arraigned in a police court on a charge of felonious assault.

The charge grew out of the wounding of a blind peddler who was standing on a street corner. A physician from the Bellevue hospital testified that the condition of the peddler, who was shot in the stomach, was critical.

CHIHUAHUA MEXICAN CAPITAL

Mexico City Will Be Declared Neutral Territory by Villa Forces.

Chihuahua, Mex., March 20.—Provisional President Garza and his cabinet will leave Mexico City as soon as the railway communication to the north is restored, and come to Chihuahua, where the temporary capital will be established. Mexico City will be made neutral territory.

An announcement to this effect was made by Senor Lambardo, minister of foreign relations in the Villa cabinet, after a long telegraphic conference with General Villa.

"Katy" Orders Locomotives.

New York, March 20.—An order for forty locomotives has been placed with the American Locomotive company by the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad. The Bethlehem Steel company has also ordered one switching engine.

President to Attend Conference.

Washington, March 20.—President Wilson promised to attend a session of the Methodist Church South's conference here on Thursday.

Truth and Duty.

Truth waits on duty. If we do not live up to what we already know, of what use to give us more truth? "Every duty we omit," says Ruskin, "obscures some truth we might have known." This is just, and we cannot resent it. To do the duty that lies next us is the only way to take a step toward larger vision.

Famous South American Falls.

The falls of Tequendama are situated near the city of Bogota, United States of Colombia, where the River Bogota rushes through a cleft 36 feet wide and falls about six hundred feet into a rocky chasm. Near the falls is the natural bridge of Inconongo, which is something more than three hundred feet high.

Diamonds Explode.

Just as a deep sea fish, when brought to the surface, sometimes bursts open owing to the removal of the great pressure to which it has been habitually subjected, so the diamond, fetched from the bowels of the earth, is liable to explode. In many instances large ones have actually burst in miners' pockets or even when held in the warm hand.

CAPTAIN OF THE DESCRIBES

Declares He Protested to Eitel Friedrich's Commander Cargo Was Not Contraband.

CAPTAIN H. H. KIEHNE, master of the four-master American ship William P. Frye, which was sunk by the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich on the morning of Jan. 28, made the following statement after the cruiser sought refuge at Newport News, Va.: "Despite my protestations that I was the American master of an American ship, the German cruiser Eitel Friedrich sank the William P. Frye on the morning of Jan. 28, blowing a gaping hole through her vitals with a charge of dynamite. "I was almost becalmed when the German ship appeared about 2 o'clock in the afternoon of Jan. 27. My ship opinion that it was one of the English ships, but nothing came of the matter." Captain Kiehne said the Eitel Friedrich sent three ships to the bottom on the kaiser's birthday, the day on which the American bark was overhauled. He did not remember their names.

German Skipper's Story.

Commander Thierichens of the royal German navy, captain of the Prinz Eitel Friedrich, gave the following description of his long run across the Pacific, around the horn, and up the Atlantic to Hampton Roads:

"Seven months ago the Prinz Eitel Friedrich left Tsingtau. Our crew was composed of men and officers from the gunboats Tiger and Luchs, and the thought was the Berwick, so we put to sea to leave their neighborhood. We put in here to land 350 passengers, forty women and children and to effect urgent repairs.

"I believe we were followed by six British warships when we were near the Virginia capes. We could hear them, but we could not see them. We were showing them our heels, however, and we ran at night with every light out."

One Prize Almost Sank Her.

The Odyssey of the Prinz Eitel Friedrich over two oceans, pursued by three of the largest navies of the world, will not be complete until the story is told how in the last few weeks of her voyage she was almost sunk by the last of her many prizes. Not once was a shell hurled at the rover by the pursuers sweeping the seas for her. But the little tramp steamer Willerby of only 2,500 tons, without a gun on board, came near sending the adventurous German to the bottom and by the tactics of ramming her, stern foremost.

"The Eitel signaled us to stop," said Captain Wedgewood of the Willerby, "but I paid no attention to her. At first I thought she was just a merchantman like us, but even when I saw her guns I kept on my course, trying to get by and pass on her port beam. But when she got to a point where it was evident she could ram us amidships we did stop. By that time were barely moving and I paid no attention to the first order from the German to lay to. However, she bore down on me, and I brought my craft to a standstill. After learning that I carried a cargo of wheat the German captain told me that it was contraband and he intended to destroy it. I protested, but no attention was paid.

"A German officer and squad of men were sent aboard the bark, and I and my crew were set to work throwing grain overboard. The German sighted another vessel, also becalmed and made for her. He returned about 10 o'clock at night, having sent the other ship to the bottom, as I afterward ascertained.

"Evidently the grain was not being thrown overboard fast enough to suit the German skipper, for he sent a half hundred of his men aboard soon afterward, and the work went on for hours without interruption. However, it was slow at best, and I was informed next morning that my ship would be sent to the bottom, which was done in the manner described.

"It was originally the intention of the German captain to leave enough of the cargo in the hold of the ship for ballast. That part of the grain was to be rendered useless by salt water.

Eluded English Warships.

"As soon as I was informed that my ship was to be sent to the bottom I, my wife and the two boys and the crew made for the German cruiser in our boats. We were taken on board and shown every courtesy throughout the remainder of the voyage.

"For two weeks before making this port the German ship molested no ships of any kind and always avoided them, not wishing to give the English cruisers any wind of her intention. She proceeded slowly up the coast, all lights that were not out being carefully shaded.

"While nearing the Virginia capes the wireless apparatus on board the German ship informed me that there were four English warships in our immediate vicinity, two of which seemed very close. However we eluded them and made the port in safety.

"An officer of the German cruiser said a black hulk was seen in the darkness about the time the wireless gave notice of the proximity of the English men-of-war. Many were of the three inch guns and eight five-inch guns we mounted came from those two boats, which were dismantled. We passed out through the Japanese Islands and eluded a number of English French and Japanese warships.

Heard Wireless Message.

Captain Thierichens said that while the vessel was coming up the south Atlantic his wireless operator heard eight warships exchanging wireless messages. He believed these to be Admiral Sturdee's squadron, which sank the German ships off the Falkland Islands.

The Russian bark Isabella Brown was the next victim of the Prinz Eitel. The Brown was burned. "Next," continued the commander, "came the French ship Pierre Loti, which was sunk. The American bark William P. Frye was sunk, and the French bark Jacobsen, encountered soon after, met the same fate. We tried to catch some other vessels, but encountered only neutrals and so steamed north.

"On Feb. 8 we met the Norwegian bark Thadasia and let her go unharmed. The British bark Invercoe was sunk on Feb. 18, and the steamer Mary Ada Short, laden with maize, was also sunk. The next day we met and sank the French steamer Floride after taking off passengers, crew and provisions. The Floride we left burning and about to go down off the Brazilian coast.

"On Feb. 29 we sunk the British steamer Willerby, and the same night we heard English warships sending wireless messages. One of them we the two ships were so close together that the Eitel had to pass right across our stern.

"Then I saw my chance. I didn't know all those women and children and citizen men were on board. I only knew she was a German and was trying to capture us. My ship was gone, I knew, and I thought I might just as well send the German down along with me, so I ordered our engines reversed at full speed, backing us straight toward the Eitel, slowly slipping past us.

"Give her —" I shouted to my engineer. "Give her — as hard as we can go it!"

Eitel Captain Saw the Danger.

"The engineer did his best. The Willerby began to back in good form, and the commander of the Eitel saw the danger. The imprisoned passengers on the Eitel saw it, too, and a panic seized them. Poor chance they would have had if trouble came to the Eitel Friedrich. They were looked up below at the approach of every strange ship, and there was no escape in sight for them. Their cries of fear as the panic took them first told me that I was not dealing with an ordinary ship of the navy.

"The Eitel's commander was talking to us with all the English he could command. His guns had been uncovered and unloading as he approached us in the first place, and they swung toward us as we backed toward the Eitel. But at that close range they could hardly have stopped us before we did our work. The commander of the Eitel probably knew that, too, for, while he threatened to fire many times, he did not do so.

"Stop or we fire!" he shouted from his bridge, but my engineer merely nursed his engine. The imprisoned passengers on the Eitel were making a loud noise by this time, and it seemed that the end was near, but somehow we could not get up headway, and the Eitel at last slipped past our stern, missing us by about fifteen feet. After that there was nothing we could do, and we surrendered.

"When I came over the side of the Eitel her commander called out to me furiously. 'Do you want to kill these people?' But I told him I didn't know the people were there till it was all over."

Know Your Next Duty.

What is my next duty? What is the thing that lies nearest me? That belongs to your every-day history. No one can answer that question but yourself. Your next duty is just to determine what your next duty is. Is there nothing you neglect? Is there nothing you know you ought not to do? You would know your duty, if you thought in earnest about it, and were not ambitious of great things—George MacDonald.

Carnot and Wolfe Tone.

Carnot, at the time he was visited by Wolfe Tone, the Irish patriot, was one of the five "directors" who governed the French republic. Soon after the abortive "invasion of England" he was proscribed and fled to Germany, but returned, and later on became minister of war, which office he held but a short time on account of his antagonism to Napoleon.

Good Word for Rabelais.

"Ah!" cried Rabelais, the promoter of coarse laughter, proudly viewing the lachrymose friends around his deathbed, "if I were to die ten times over I should never make you cry half so much as I have made you laugh." So you see old Rabelais, though you may question the taste of his celebrated laugh treatment, was some doctor.

NEW YORK SAFE FROM INVASION

Forts Could Keep Warships at Civil Distance.

OUR GUNS OUTRANGE THEIRS

Government Experts Deny That Bombardment of Dardanelles Has Demonstrated That New York City Could Be Attacked by Battleships of Queen Elizabeth Type.

Assertions that the long distance bombardment of the Dardanelles forts has demonstrated that New York City could be bombarded with entire safety to themselves by battleships of the type of the Queen Elizabeth and the Agincourt, whose guns outrange those in the forts defending New York, are based on misinformation and misconception, according to government experts in Washington. They said that such assertions have been made before and have been shown to have been founded on erroneous ideas.

"In the first place," said a prominent officer, "the effective range of the guns of the Agincourt or Queen Elizabeth is not 26,000 yards. The best that has ever been claimed is 23,000 yards, while 21,000 yards is much the safer figure. Now, on the other hand the effective range of our 12 inch guns is 13,000 yards, as they are now mounted and operated.

Advantage With Us.

"The enemy attacking New York would be at a disadvantage. The advantage in range finding would be with us. In the next place, we have many mortars in all those fortifications with an effective range of 10,000 yards under ordinary circumstances and for which a range of 23,000 yards can be safely claimed if put to the critical test.

"Now, if any one who is at all experienced on the subject will take the trouble to get a map of New York City, the harbor and with a compass strike off the radii showing the effective range of our guns they will find that the twelve inch guns of Fort Hancock will reach to a point two miles south of Coney Island and a mile west of the western point of Rockaway Beach. That is the spot from which it is suggested vessels of the Queen Elizabeth type would turn loose on Wall street. From that point to the Times building is about 26,000 yards, the exaggerated range of the guns of the British Dreadnought. As a matter of fact the twelve inch guns at Fort Hancock on Sandy Hook can reach effectively some distance beyond the point where the bombarding ship would have to take position.

"And that is not all. There are twelve inch guns at Fort Tompkins and Fort Wadsworth that could reach past the point from which the vessels of the Queen Elizabeth class would begin their fire."

CHAFF BETWEEN OUTPOSTS

French and Germans Exchange Gibe on a School Blackboard.

The Journal des Debats of Paris describes an exchange of messages between French and German soldiers written alternately on a blackboard in the schoolroom of a village between the opposing lines.

First the Germans wrote:

"You French fools! Do you not realize that you are working for the English and Russians? Sign peace with us, who do not wish you harm. Answer."

Next morning an adventurous French man answered:

"You poor idiots, used as tools for the ambition of William and the doddering Austrian! Come over here. You'll find a good supper, lodging and rest. The sooner the war is ended the sooner you will rejoin your wives and children."

The Germans replied:

"Brave Frenchmen, you are being fooled. Join us. Let us fight the British together and afterward live happily hand in hand. Answer."

The French response was brief and unprintable.

"DON'T FORGET THE CANARY."

Rough Hand of Soldier Wrote It in Crude Script.

A dispatch from Lille to the Tagliche Rundschau of Berlin says:

The latest number of the Lille War News contains a supplement illustrated by the Munich artist Arnold. One of the items is as follows:

"When I was trying to find quarters for the battalion's business office in a little village close to the enemy I entered a house on the door of which was written:

"Bitte Gannarienvogel nicht vergessen! Please do not forget the canary."

"The rough hand of a soldier had written this in crude script. This 'barbarian' was a Saxon, as was proved by the 'G' used instead of a 'C' in the way the Saxons pronounce these sounds.

"The feathered protegee was abundantly supplied with water, sugar and seeds and was always turned over to the following troops, was cared for by them in turn and thus survived despite the flight of his owners."

THE HEART OF POLAND.

Cracow, Its Buried Patriots and the Hill of Kosciusko.

Cracow is the ancient capital of Poland, the city around which cluster most of the glorious memories of that lost but not forgotten kingdom. There for more than 400 years the kings of Poland were crowned and buried, and for more than 300 years it was their seat of government.

There lie buried Jan Sobieski, who delivered Vienna—and thereby all Europe—from the Turks; Poniatowski, the famous general who became one of Napoleon's marshals; Mickiewicz, the poet of Poland, and Kosciusko, the patriot hero of the Poles. The tombs of all four are in the Stanislas cathedral, a beautiful Gothic church built in 1333, that crowns the Wawel, a rocky hill that rises on the edge of the town. There are other fine churches in the city, the Augustinian and Dominican among them, and there is also the great royal castle, which was long the residence of the kings of Poland, and fell to the uses of a barracks after the kingdom was divided and which has within the last fifty years been restored.

The city also contains a very famous old university, which dates from 1364 and in age is second only to Prague among the universities of Europe.

Cracow itself was founded about 706 A. D. More than once it was destroyed by the Tartars, rebuilt and reconquered by Polish, German and Bohemian settlers. From 1305 to 1610 it was the capital of Poland. Later it was part of the grand duchy of Warsaw, and from 1815 to 1846 it was, with its immediate neighborhood, a free and neutral state, a distinction it lost when internal disorders gave Austria an excuse to step in and take possession of the town.

One of the most interesting things in Cracow is Kosciusko hill, a mound of earth on the top of the Borislava hill. It is made up of handfuls of earth brought by Poles from every corner of the kingdom and thrown together to form a memorial to the Polish patriot, composed of the soil of the country he loved so well. Across the river Vistula on Krakus hill there is a similar mound, which is said to be almost 1,200 years old. It was, so tradition says, raised in the same way to the memory of Krakus, the Slavic prince who founded the city.

To the patriotic Pole Cracow is always the spiritual center of his fatherland—the "heart of Poland."—Youth's Companion.

SIBERIAN VILLAGES.

Life of the Peasants, Their Cottages and Their Steam Baths.

An interesting account of the characteristics of Siberian villages is given in his book, "Siberia," by M. P. Price.

"The villages through which we traveled on the way were Russian in every respect. Streets were wide and full of ruts and slime. The houses had log frames and rough heavy boards for the roof. They had a clean and well kept appearance and were surrounded by fences of wooden boards. Through the fence a gateway opened into a courtyard where the live stock were kept. A stream generally runs behind the village, and the manure from the yards is pitched in heaps along its banks, being carried away each year by the spring floods.

"There is a large room with a brick stove, taking up perhaps a quarter of the room. In this the family eat, live and sleep—some on the stove and some on the floor—while a separate small room is kept and reserved for visitors or others who are not members of the family. The rooms are whitewashed, and each member of the family has a steam bath every week in a but kept for the purpose only.

"The notion that the Russian peasant is habitually dirty is most mistaken. Here, at all events, the average Siberian peasant's house could compete with the best cottages in rural England. The temperature of the rooms is generally rather a trial to such as are not used to extreme cold outside and sealed windows with a stove inside."

Chocolate.

Although the "drink called chocolate" did not appear in England until 1657, its restorative properties soon became generally known. Thus on May 24, 1661, after an evening of carousing, Pepys "worked in the morning, with my head in a sad taking through the last night's drink, which I am very sorry for; so rose and went out with Mr. Creed to drink our morning draft, which he did give me in chocolate to settle my stomach."

Tart Retort.

When "Orator" Hunt, who was a blacking manufacturer, was in parliament, Sir Robert Peel so far forgot himself in the course of an acrimonious debate as to taunt him with this fact. Whereupon Hunt replied: "The truth is, the honorable member is the first gentleman in his family, and I am the first tradesman in mine."

A Welsh Word.

In north Wales the Welsh word for "now" is "rwan." In south Wales it is "rwan" spelled backward—viz. "nawr." It is conjectured that the first north Wales man who made use of the word was standing on his head at the time and that his pronunciation became general.—Cardiff Western Mail.

Mending the Hot Water Bag.

A hole in a hot water bag can be repaired by the same means as a puncture in a bicycle tire. Drop a small brass plug into the bag, work the threaded end through the hole and screw on a tiny nut. This will hold indefinitely.

Orange Shortcake.

ORANGES may be used to make winter shortcakes. Served with whipped cream, the cakes are handsome desserts.

Filled Before Serving.

Orange Shortcake With Cream.—Take three tablespoons of butter, three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, one egg, a half cupful of milk, one and a half cupfuls of sifted pastry flour and two teaspoonsful of baking powder. Cream butter, sugar and egg until light, add sifting powder to dough and stir into a creamed mass, alternating with milk. Beat well; then bake in deep cake pans. When cold split and put orange filling between. To make the filling, scoop the clear pulp from two small Florida oranges, sugar liberally and place between layers; now divide one orange into sections, place whipped cream on cake; then lay sections of orange around edge. The cake must be filled just before serving.

Orange and Pineapple Shortcake.—Take two cupfuls of flour, two tablespoons butter, one cupful milk, four teaspoonsful baking powder, half a teaspoonful of salt, one can of shredded pineapple, four oranges. Cut the oranges in small pieces, mix with pineapple, sweeten to taste and let it stand an hour. Sift the flour, salt and baking powder. Cut in the butter with a knife; then add cake mix. This will fill two round shallow cake tins. Put half the fruit between layers, the rest on top.

A Plain Dough.

Orange Shortcake With Biscuit Dough.—Take two large oranges or three small ones, cut in pieces and cover with sugar; let stand until a rich sirup is formed. Make a biscuit dough, using one heaping cupful of flour, one rounding tablespoonful of baking powder and milk to make a soft dough, and bake. When done split the crust. Butter both pieces, add the orange to lower piece; then put the orange on top.

Orange Shortcake a la Mode.—Take six oranges, peel and remove seeds and white skin. Slice and sprinkle with sugar. Bake these until the cake is baked. Cream together a cupful of sugar and a half cupful of butter. Stir into the mixture a well beaten egg, half a cupful of milk and a pint of flour sifted, with two teaspoonsful of baking powder. Bake in two sheets. When baked place the oranges between the layers and serve with a sauce made from two cupfuls of hot water, a teaspoonful of butter and half a cupful of sugar and cornstarch to thicken. Flavor with the juice of one orange and grated yellow rind of two. Serve hot.

WANT TO WRITE A NOVEL?

Well, Here's Your Plot All Ready For the Little Details.

Take one ocean liner plying between San Francisco and the Philippines. Add a young man going to Hawaii on business and an heiress and her aunt going nowhere in particular. Mix the two young folk gradually among the other passengers, with an occasional half hour alone away from the watchful eye of the aunt. Turn the ship into the center of one tropical storm. Mix gradually until they come to a froth, the sea and the howling of the winds. Beat the vessel slowly against jagged rocks until it is well pounded up. Throw in looks of despair to suit the taste. Add one blinding flash of lightning "that rent the heavens" to a "convulsive heave of the stout old hull that had braved the southern seas for years."

Pour a wave mountain high on the ship, mixing the passengers briskly together; then turn the entire mass suddenly into the sea. Put the young man's arm provisionally against a floating spar, chicken coop or a door out of a stateroom. Have another convenient wave sweep the maid in his direction. Put in a "strong young arm." Add "then all grew black."

Drop in a sandy beach unexpectedly. Put the hero on the beach. Have him "come to" with the sun shining brightly or brightly. Close by put the maid, a la daughter of the skipper of the schooner Hesperus, minus the salt sea being frozen on her breast.

Inject into the situation at this point one handy cave, with another ditto near by. Add signals daily to passing ships. After basking thoroughly for six months on the island put in a rescue after hope had been abandoned, a trip to the good old U. S. A., and one church close to the corner. Mix in sufficient detail to suit, place in an attractive cover and serve to the public at $1.35 per serve.—Indianapolis News.

SOCIETY MAN SHOT ON LINKS

Says He Was Fired on From Ambush.

ONLY SLIGHTLY WOUNDED

Philadelphia Figures In Mysterious
Affair In Savannah, and Police Suspect
Duel Over Love Affair.

Savannah, Ga., March 20.—Frederick Steelman Bain, son of Mrs. Frederick Bain, of Philadelphia, employed here as clerk in the Savannah offices of George H. McFadden & Brother, cotton brokers, of Philadelphia, was shot and slightly wounded on the links of the Savannah Golf club, on the outskirts of the city.

Rumors are current in Savannah society circles that Bain either attempted suicide because of a love affair in which he is reported to have been unfortunate, or engaged in a duel with a rival for the hand of Miss Edith Bryson, a society girl.

Bain's own account of the shooting is that he was lured to the golf links by an anonymous note; that he went there close to midnight, met a man he did not know, but who led him to believe he was the author of the note, and walked with the stranger across the golf course.

When near the eighteenth hole, far from the club house, he says, the stranger suddenly turned on him and fired a shot from a revolver, the bullet entering his right side between the lower ribs and the hip bone.

George W. Campbell, a friend of Bain's, had followed him to the golf club and found him a few minutes after the shooting. He gave him first aid and assisted him to a nearby house, where he was put to bed and a physician summoned. Later he was removed to the Oglethorpe sanitarium, where it was said he was but slightly wounded and would recover.

The police are investigating the shooting, but have made no arrests. Bain can give no description of the man who shot him or any reason for the alleged attack, and has made no statements except what he said to the county authorities before being taken to the hospital.

There is much speculation in Savannah as to Bain's version of the shooting. It is said that he is in love with Miss Bryson and that she is engaged to be married to Harvey Gilbert, a young society man of Savannah, although no announcement has been made.

Miss Bryson is said to have received several anonymous letters reflecting on Gilbert, and in this connection Bain has been criticised by a number of former friends. There had been some talk of prosecution in connection with the letters, but nothing was done.

Bain is said to have taken his love affair seriously and to have been gloomy for some time. That is said to be the reason Campbell followed him to the golf links.

COAL TAX FOR ROAD FUND

Attorney General Has Bill to Raise $4,500,000 a Year.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 20.—When the legislature meets on Monday evening Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown will submit a bill taxing an attractive coal for road purposes in Pennsylvania.

The bill is designed to raise about $4,500,000 a year, to be devoted to construction work, the automobile license fund going into repairs.

The attorney general will also have a bill for the reorganizing of his department and another providing that the auditor general report to the legislature on the first day of its session every two years the amount of unexpended balances on hand and available for its emergency uses.

HELEN M. ANGLE.

Connecticut Jury Acquits Her of Manslaughter Charge.

MRS. ANGLE ACQUITTED OF MANSLAUGHTER

Hysterical Scene Follows Verdict of Jury.

Bridgeport, Conn., March 20.—The shadow of the mysterious death of Waldo R. Ballou was lifted from Mrs. Helen M. Angle. She was acquitted of the charge of manslaughter and tottered down the broad steps of the Fairfield county court house, a shattered woman, hardly able to comprehend that she was free.

The verdict was followed by a scene of almost hysterical excitement, caused partly by the fact that the finding was unexpected to many who had listened to the brilliant summing up of State's Attorney Cummings and the coldly analytical charge of Judge Williams. Mrs. Angle never doubted for a moment that she would be freed, but her attorneys feared a disagreeable scene.

Cheers and handclapping that died the court's gavel almost drowned the low moan with which Mrs. Angle threw herself on her father's neck. He clasped her tightly to him for a moment, and then, his own emotions overpowering him, his grasp weakened and she slipped slowly to the floor.

Her father bent over her as women and attendants rushed to her side, and the court room echoed with cries and exclamations through which the shuddering moans of Mrs. Angle pierced sharply. Women wept openly and Jacob Klein (her attorney, stood over her patting her shoulder, saying: "Hush! hush!" as to a child, while tears rolled down his cheeks.

Dies While Awaiting Sentence.

Wilmington, Del., March 20.—Frank W. Anthony, who had pleaded guilty to two charges of illegally using the mails in insurance frauds, died at the New Castle county work house of heart disease. He was awaiting sentence.

EDISON WON OUT.

He Humbled the Pride of the Speedy Telegraph Operator.

Edison made his first record as a telegraph operator in Memphis. He walked into the office there one morning looking like a veritable hayseed. He wanted a job, and, although his appearance was not prepossessing, the office was short handed, and he was assigned a desk at the St. Louis wire, the hardest in the office. "At the end of the line was an operator who was chain lightning and knew it," says Francis Arthur Jones' "Life of Edison."

"Edison had hardly got seated before St. Louis called. The newcomer responded, and St. Louis started on a long report, which he pumped in like a house afire. Edison threw his leg over the arm of his chair, leisurely transferred a wad of spruce gum from his pocket to his mouth, took up a pen, examined it critically and started in about fifty words behind. He didn't stay there long, though. St. Louis let out another link of speed and still another, and the instrument on Edison's table hummed like an old style sewing machine. Every man in the office left his desk and gathered around the jay to see what he was doing with that electric cyclone.

"Well, sir, he was right on the word and taking it down in the prettiest copy-plate hand you ever saw, even crossing his 't's' and dotting his 't's' and punctuating with as much ease as a man editing telegraph for printers. St. Louis got tired by and by and began to slow down. Then Edison opened the key and said:

"Hello, there! When are you going to get a hustle on? This is no primer class."

"Well, sir," said the gentleman who told the story, "that broke St. Louis all up. He had been rawhiding Memphis for a long time, and we were terribly sore, and to have a man in our office who could walk all over him made us feel like a man whose horse had won the Derby."

Self Reliance.

Much as worthy friends add to the happiness and value of life we must in the main depend upon ourselves, and every one is his own best friend or worst enemy.—Lord Avebury.

Nice and Polite and Modest.

A minister was recounting some of his amusing experiences in nattering people. "There's an old custom," said he, "that the bridegroom shall kiss the bride immediately after the marriage ceremony is over. It's a good, practical custom, for it serves more handsomely than anything else that I know of to dissipate the awkward pause that almost always follows a simple, informal ceremony. For this reason I keep the custom alive."

IT IS YOUR PRIVILEGE TO SALUTE THE BRIDE.

ceremony is over. It's a good, practical custom, for it serves more handsomely than anything else that I know of to dissipate the awkward pause that almost always follows a simple, informal ceremony. For this reason I keep the custom alive.

"One day a man whom I shall call Blank came to the parsonage to be married. Mr. Blank was a pompous, consequential little man. The prospective Mrs. Blank was a fine, winsome girl. After the ceremony Mr. Blank in spite of his pomposity, did not seem to know just what was the next thing to do, so, as is my practice in such emergencies, I said, 'My dear sir, it is your privilege to salute the bride.' He turned around and, extending his hand formally said, 'Mrs. Blank, I congratulate you.'—New York Times.

On a Business Basis.

Shortly after the reconstruction period began, an old southern planter met one of his negroes whom he had not seen since the latter's liberation. "Well, well!" said the planter. "What are you doing now, Uncle Josh?" "I's a preachin' of de Gospel." "What? You preachin'?" "Yassah, marster, I's a preachin'." "Well, well! Do you use notes?" "Nossuh. At de fust I use notes, but now I demands de cash."—Judge.

SKIRT WITH GATHERED TUNIC.

New one-piece gathered skirt with gathered tunic. The high waist-line is still a fashionable feature of the latest models.

Exceedingly smart is the separate skirt of white material. Quite a new fashion is to develop the models with shirred tunics in silk crepe de Chine.

Pictorial Review Skirt No. 6185. Sizes 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist. Price, 15 cents.

because of its softness. The skirt pictured here requires about 4 yards of 44-inch material for its development. The tunic is interrupted at the front, revealing the front panel of the foundation skirt. It may be trimmed with buttons or braid.

Before making the skirt it is first necessary to decide on the preferred way of closing it. If desired closing in front or back, slash down fold in gores from upper edges to single large "O" perforations and finish edges for opening. We are now working on the foundation. Pleat upper edge of back gore, placing "T" on small "O" perforation, then join gores as notched. In making the outer skirt with open front it is necessary to face foundation gores at center-front and at lower edge to small "O" perforations.

The outer skirt may have the front cut on a fold or with a hem. If the latter method is used close back seam from large "O" perforation to lower edge; finish edges above for opening. If desired with a hem, turn under front edge 1 1/2 inch; lap right front on left, centers even (large "O" perforations indicate center-front); stitch, leaving edges free above large "O" perforation for opening. Gather upper edge between double "T" perforations. Turn under 3/4 inches for a hem. Arrange on foundation, centers even; stitch upper edges together, small "O" perforation at side seam.

It is correct style to bind the borders of skirts with broad bands of satin, silk or braid, and the result is most effective.

How much per —DELIVERED Mile?

THAT'S the Tire Question in a Nutshell!

Not—"how much does the Tire Cost?"—"how many layers of Cotton fabric?"—"how many different Vulcanizings does it go through?"

Because—Results have shown that some of the Tires which have most Cotton, Rubber, Weight and stiffness, give much less MILEAGE and Resilience than other tires made lighter by more expert workmen, through more direct and precise Methods.

Nor is so-called "Mileage Guarantee" worth considering in purchasing of Tires.

Because—no Tires are actually guaranteed to give definite Mileage, no matter what the surface reading may suggest.

Such "Guarantee" would be impracticable with the best Tire ever made, or that ever will be made.

—This, unless the Tire User could, in turn, guarantee the kind of roads over which he would always drive, the kind of driving his Chauffeur would always do, and the air pressure he would always carry on each Tire.

THE "Mileage Guarantee" is therefore a deceptive Misnomer.

It does not guarantee given Mileage but is only a figure arbitrarily named "as a Basis for Adjustment" on Claims made for defective Workmanship or Materials.

Read any of these "Guarantees" that are printed (or have the verbal ones defined) and you will see that they don't guarantee anything except that the Maker alone shall decide everything such "Guarantee" is supposed to cover.

The larger the "Mileage" "Guarantee" the higher the price the Maker must charge, to cover (as with Life Insurance) the increased "risk" of replacing Tires that are reasonably sure to wear out in considerable numbers, before they have given the "Guaranteed" Mileage.

The Careful Driver, over good roads and streets, would thus pay more than the Tire is worth, so that the Reckless Driver, or he who must continually drive over bad roads and streets, might get Mileage he is not entitled to, at the Careful Driver's expense.

The Goodrich Safety Tread

is the fairest-priced Tire, of similar Quality, in the field.—

Ten to 30% lower than other Tires that give less Mileage on average performance less effective Traction, with more Vibration, and greater tendency to separate the layers of Fabric and of Tread.

Compare the "Goodrich Safety" Mileage Costs with that of any other Tire in the field, and ACT on what the Comparison shows you.

Note the following table of comparative prices on non-skid tires. Columns headed "A," "B," "C," and "D" represent four highly-advertised tires:

Size	Goodrich Safety Tread	A	B	C	D
30x3	$ 9.45	$10.55	$10.95	$16.35	$18.10
30x3 1/2	12.20	13.35	14.20	21.70	23.60
32x3 1/2	14.00	15.40	16.30	22.65	25.30
34x4	20.35	22.30	23.80	31.15	33.55
36x4	28.70	32.15	33.60	41.85	41.40
37x5	33.90	39.80	41.80	49.85	52.05

If you are charged less for any other make than Goodrich, they are taking it out of the tire; if you are charged more, they are taking it out of you.

THE SHERIFF'S STRATAGEM

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

As I was resting at the top of a long hill I was overtaken by a man on horseback, and after salutations had been exchanged he observed that he was in no hurry and would get down to smoke a pipe with me. After awhile he announced that he was the county sheriff and was then on his way to recapture a prisoner who had broken out of jail at Smithville the night before. The prisoner lived in a cabin a short distance down the road, and as we finished our pipes and jogged along the officer suggested that I call with him and witness the performance.

"But is the fugitive a dangerous man?" I asked.

"That's according to how you take him," was the answer.

"And how do you mean to take him?"

"Oh, I'll be sort of soft and gentle with him, and if there is going to be any shooting you'll have warning in time to get out."

It was summer time, and when we reached the cabin the escaped prisoner sat on the doorstep with a shotgun across his knees and a pipe between his teeth. His wife, who was also smoking, sat on a log near by having the family ax close at hand, and the pair never even looked up while the sheriff was dismounting and hitching his horse to a tree. I got the wink to await developments, and we took seats on a stump within twenty feet of the door and filled our pipes for another smoke. Neither the man nor his wife paid the slightest attention to us or we to them, and thus stood the situation for a quarter of an hour. Then the fugitive began to grow uneasy, and after a bit he said:

"Tom, I reckon yo' hev come for me."

"Skassly, Bill, skassly," replied the sheriff as he looked up in seeming surprise.

"If yo' hev I'll never be taken back to that jail alive!" growled the fugitive.

I glanced at the wife, and the look on her face and the way she fingered the ax told plainly that she was ready to stand by her husband in case he needed help.

"Don't git uneasy," advised the sheriff. Then he began to tell me about the county jail. It wasn't so much to look at from the outside and lots of people thereby got a wrong impression of it. One must become a prisoner to appreciate that jail.

The beds were of the best.

The fare was that of a hotel.

Once a day the sheriff came in and related all the outside news.

Enchre decks and cigars and plug tobacco furnished free of charge.

Visitors admitted any time of the day or night, and they could stay as long as they desired.

Once every week there is a big entertainment, either a vaudeville show or a mighty fine concert.

"Why, Bill," we heard the jail breaker's wife say to him, "you never dun told me that the jail was like this."

"Dog my cats, but I didn't know it myself!" he growled.

"It's better than bein' right yere at home."

And then the sheriff went on to say that when holidays came the prisoners got such a feast as few men outside ever got. Besides mince pie and fried oysters, there were ten cent cigars to smoke and champagne to drink.

"But Bill must have mistook about it," said the wife.

"Mrs. Baker, I hate to say anything to a wife about her husband," answered the officer, "but I must tell you that I never had any one in my jail so ornery as your Bill. He was kicking like a mawl all the time."

"But I wanted to git outer jail," said Bill.

"Of co'se you did—of co'se, and why? You found the other prisoners so fur above you in education and manners that it was uncomfortable fur you."

"Bill can read and write his name," boasted his wife.

"Yes?"

"And what's the matter with his manners?"

"I will tell you after you first tell me why every one was glad when he broke jail and vanished. They made me promise when I came away this morning not to bring him back. They are mighty sorry fur you, Mrs. Baker, but they hain't got no use for any sich critter as your Bill."

"And you wasn't lookin' fur me?" anxiously asked Bill.

"I was, but it was to tell you that you can't come back to my jail no mo'. No, sah, you can't. If I catch you around there'll be a big row."

"Bill, you are gwine right back to that jail," said his wife.

"Sorry, Mrs. Baker, but I can't take him."

"But I say he's got to go! I hain't gwine to stand for folks sayin' we are low down."

"Yes, I'm gwine right back," growled the husband.

"You are out, and you'd better stay out."

"I'll be hanged if I will!"

"Please let him go back with you!" pleaded the wife.

The sheriff seemed to be pondering for full five minutes before he answered:

"Well, it's on your account, Mrs. Baker, fur I do feel sorry fur you. He can tag along behind, and I'll never try to do him a favor ag'in."

And an hour later Bill Baker was in the county jail.
